

SUSTAINABLE TOURISM AND SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY

Tourism plays a vital role in the pursuit of sustainability, in our commitment to sustainable management and responsible tourism we are working hard with local communities, once a week we visit them carrying groceries, supplies, clothes and shoes. As part of our work our naturalist guides make a speech about environmental conservation to children, such activity is performed in order to raise awareness and sensitize the community about the importance of protecting and preserving our environment and our natural resources.

As part of our job, we work with artisan women in San Francisco; this is a local community along the Rio Ucayali. The work of art of these talented women is displayed in our ship as part of its decor. As part of our social assistance program, we also exhibit their crafts in our shop on board where we encourage tourists to buy these pieces of art in order to contribute to this community; all incomes will help us to support the school with school supplies throughout the year.

Another important contribution is to support the Association for the Conservation of Amazonian Biodiversity (ACOBIA), where we work to support the preservation of our resources and environment. We contribute with a donation for the execution of its activities and likewise aim the community to have direct contact with nature and value the natural resources and the rich biodiversity provided to us by Mother Nature.
